

There are two theories from people that have gotten around this problem. Number one is don't try to type on the nook while it's laying flat on the table. Others swear it's because it's plugged in. I think the reason is it's laying flat while being charged, but try both if you have this problem!